

What will this information be used for?

With MyChart powered by Epic, you can update your personal information, which will be shown in your hospital patient record. If you wish to share this information, you can enter your chosen name, gender identity, sexual orientation, preferred language, and religion.

Unity Health Toronto is committed to facilitating respectful and affirming patient interactions. Knowing the name and pronouns that a patient uses helps us to ensure that this is the name we use in all our interactions with you.

Patient responses to sexual orientation and gender identity (SOGI) will help healthcare providers understand when additional factors affect treatment and health outcomes. This allows our teams to tailor clinical recommendations for individual patients.

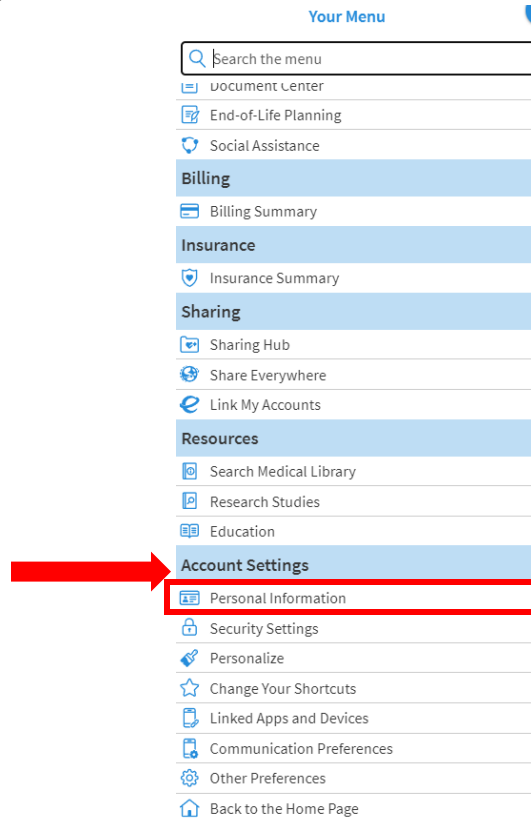

If you choose to include religion in your health record, someone from our Spiritual Care team might ask if you want a visit from your religious group during your in-patient stay.

Indicating your preferred language will help healthcare providers determine patient language needs before a visit and make appropriate arrangements to use interpreter services. This will lead to safe care and a better care experience.

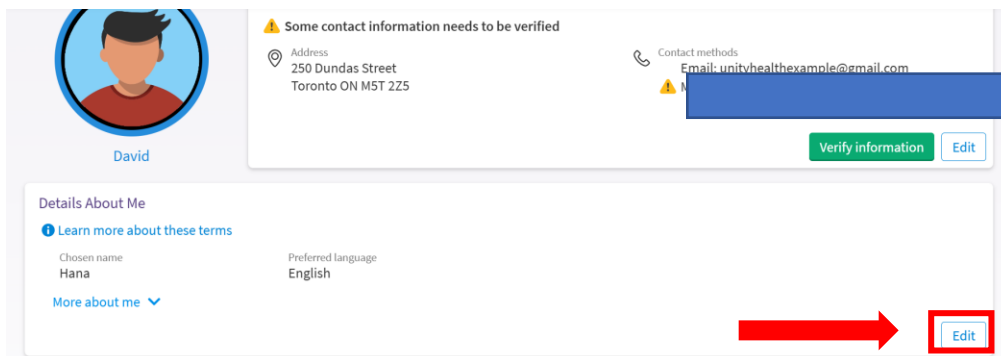

Responding to these questions is voluntary. This information will be visible to all Unity Health staff with access to your health record and protected like all other health information. This will also be visible to anyone you have given access to your MyChart through proxy access and could be shared with external (non-Unity Health) care providers within your circle of care.

You have the option to change or remove any of this information at any time.

Under the Account Settings, click on Personal Information from the drop-down list.

You will see this screen. Under Details About Me, click Edit.

Enter your Chosen name and Preferred language. Click Save changes.

Click More about me to enter additional personal information, such as gender identity, sexual orientation, and religion. You can edit any personal information you want to share with us. Some fields have an “i” icon near them. If you click “i” more information about the fields will appear.

Click Save changes to save any information you have entered.
